SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Oct. 19.—William Edward Hickman went to his death on the gallows at San Quentin prison today for the murder of Marion Parker, 12-year-old banker's daughter.

The former Kansas City school boy was hanged at 10:10 a. m. (Pacific time) after repenting in the closing days of his life for the kidnaping and murder which has climaxed his career of crime.

SAN QUENTIN STATE PRISON, Calif., Oct. 19.—The trail of "The Fox" neared its end in a hangman's noose today.

William Edward Hickman, who signed the name of "The Fox" to ransom letters while holding Marion Parker captive in Los Angeles last December, was face to face with death. Caged behind the wooden slats of the cell of the condemned, he awaited the summons of the warden of San Quentin state prison to be hanged at 10 a. m. for her murder.

The mask of cunning and bravado he wore immediately after his capture and during his trial in Los Angeles, was gone.

In silent meditation he waited for a priest to spend the last hour or two of his life with him.

Father William A. Fleming, the prison chaplain, who led Hickman into the Catholic Church, will administer the last rites of that faith and go before him in the procession to the gallows.

Arrangements were completed for the burial of Hickman and his mind seemed relieved when he was told his body would not be turned over to science. After it is embalmed in the prison mortuary, Hickman's body will be borne a few miles away to a cemetery near San Rafael, almost within sight of the walls of San Quentin. His father, Thomas Hickman, picked out the burial plot before leaving last night for his home in El Paso, Tex.

It was Edward's wish that he be buried near his boyhood home in Arkansas, but the limited funds of the Hickman family would not permit this desire to be carried out. The suit in which he will be hanged and later buried had been shown to Hickman and he seemed pleased with the selection. It was a black broadcloth suit of stylish cut.

Beyond a wall that shut it off from his view, the gallows was prepared for the hanging.

Hickman's last full day of life was a busy one, as he went with the men who occupy in solitude the cell of the condemned. Alternately he played a phonograph that was brought in at his request, read letters or sat on the edge of his cot in deep thought.

Toward evening the warden brought him a letter from his mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman of Kansas City. His face brightened as the letter was handed to him. He tore the envelope open eagerly, and read its contents again and again.

"It was so good of her to write me," he told his warden. "I wish she would have been able to come out, even if only for a little while, before I was brought here."

Hickman ate sparingly during the day, saying he was too busy with his work. For dinner he had fried chicken with country gravy. And he ate with a boyish appetite.

As the evening wore on he became more and more meditative. Seldom did he peer through the slats of his cell at the two guards keeping the death watch outside.

When taps sounded, lights out within the prison, the electric light in his cell was turned off, leaving an open gas jet burning with a feeble flame. For a while Hickman read by the dim flickering light and then threw himself on the cot for his final night of sleep.

The two death guards watched by turns the short, stocky figure stretched on the narrow cot and conversed in subdued tones on "how Eddie was taking it so coolly."

These same guards, Frank Hozaboom and Charles Aiton, had kept the same vigil over many other men for the two nights and a day they were tenants of the condemned cage. But never, they said, had they seen a prisoner whose thoughts were more collected, or who seemingly had less fear of death.

AIR MAIL FLYER IS KILLED

"WILD BILL" HOPSON IS BURNED AFTER CRASH

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 19.—William C. "Wild Bill" Hopson, missing air mail flyer who took off at Clarion, Pa., for Cleveland, Ohio, early yesterday, was found dead in his smashed airplane shortly after 7 a. m. today in a dense woods three miles west of Polk.

Hopson's plane struck a tree on a hillside. It was believed he became confused in a heavy rainstorm and tried to make a forced landing in the darkness.

Realizing that he was off his course, Hopson dropped flares in an attempt to identify the country over which he was flying.

The pilot's crushed body was found in the seat of the wrecked plane by searching parties which had started combing the section shortly after dawn.

The plane, nearly destroyed by flames, had crashed in the underbrush at a point midway between Polk and Pecan Hill.

Hopson, who had been burned to death at the controls, was found sitting upright in the skeleton fragment of the cockpit. Flares had destroyed part of the half-ton cargo of mail which Hopson was flying from the New York terminal of the route.

Alva Haynes, manager of the air mail station at Clarion, Pa., planned to take off for Cleveland with the salvaged mail.

Searchers were directed to the scene of Hopson's crash by Mrs. Mary Gillind, nurse at the state training school at Polk.

SMITH TO CONCLUDE WESTERN CAMPAIGN IN CHICAGO SPEECH

Will Visit Taggart In Indianapolis On Return Trip

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith is to conclude his personal campaign in the west today with a forty-mile automobile tour of Chicago and a farewell night speech. It is to be his biggest day of the campaign thus far in many respects.

His motor parade route is to carry him to the north, west and south sides and all around the town.

Tens and perhaps hundreds of thousands of persons are expected to line the way for a glimpse of the Democratic presidential nominee's brown derby smile.

Police have been ordered to be stationed as close as possible over the entire route to prevent a repetition of the tumultuous scenes at some other cities where crowds overwhelmed the police.

The governor has practically finished the speech he is to deliver at the 131st Regiment armory in the downtown district. But in accordance with his custom, recently adopted, he will not divulge the subject he has chosen.

Smith is enthused over the situation he has found here. The Democratic leaders appear to be working in accord in an earnest effort to carry these twenty-nine votes which have always been just as good Republican as soon as hominizing conventions were held in previous years. The guiding hand in his campaign here has been manipulated by a converted Republican friend of the governor, George Getz, in whose trucking concern Smith was for a time employed.

The governor's train will leave here tomorrow noon to return to Albany by way of Indianapolis. He will stop at Indianapolis at about 5 p. m. Central time for an hour's parade. While there he will visit the hospital bedside of his friend, the Indiana Democratic leader, Thomas Taggart, who has been ill for several months.

BELIEVE COOLIDGE TO ENTER CAMPAIGN TO ANSWER CHARGES

May Defend Policies Against Attack Of Democrat

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—President Coolidge, it was believed here today, will enter the presidential campaign dramatically in defense of repeated charges by Governor Alfred E. Smith that the administration is "misrepresenting" the true situation in its economy claims.

His speech would constitute not only a defense of the administration, but also a campaign speech for Herbert Hoover, who is standing upon the administration's record.

President Coolidge, according to his friends, has been hesitant about entering the campaign, despite a desire to aid Hoover. He is known to have pondered, whether the presidential office should be lent to political campaigning, as much as he would like to assist the Republican campaign.

There is only one precedent for it, the active campaign conducted by President Roosevelt for William Howard Taft, who was secretary of war in his cabinet when nominated. Otherwise presidents have declined to leave their presidential office and assume a political role. Therefore, Coolidge, who is inclined to follow the usual rule conservatively, has hesitated.

But the repeated charge of the Democratic presidential candidate has changed the situation, his friends point out, and they believe he will enter the campaign. Smith has attacked the administration and singled out Coolidge personally in his charges.

Coolidge's speech would be devoted to a defense of his administration, but would stand out as a campaign document for Hoover. He probably would take occasion to praise his former cabinet officer, in connection with the administration's record.

New York, Massachusetts, or this city have been suggested as places for the speech. The president might make more than one. Mr. Coolidge's Fredericksburg, Va., speech today was not interpreted as a campaign speech in the usual sense.

His possible course overshadowed other campaign developments there though it is believed he would make the speech within the next week or ten days, toward the wind-up of the campaign.

"FOX" EXECUTED

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 19.—Surrounded by ministers and members of his family, the Rev. E. S. Shumaker, Indiana Anti-Saloon League secretary, went to the Indiana state farm at Putnamville today.

The procession took on an aspect of triumph as the Anti-Saloon League leader started to serve his sentence of sixty days in the prison for contempt of court.

INDIANA SALOON FOE GOES TO JAIL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—An investigation into validity of all oil contracts made by former Secretary of Interior Fall has been ordered by Secretary of Interior West.

The department has discovered so far only one other contract containing a renewal option clause similar to that which caused Attorney General Sargent to invalidate sale of Salt Creek Royalty oil.

"FLY" LOSES GRIP

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19.—Hundreds of pedestrians received a thrill here last night when Johnnie J. Woods, a "human fly" from New London, Conn., whom they were watching climb the walls of the Neil House, lost his grip with one hand and hung for several minutes from his other. Woods, blindfolded, managed to regain his hold and ascended to the fourth floor where he was forced to give up the climb. Woods protested here yesterday when police refused him permission to climb the A. I. U. tower.

DENY EXTRADITION

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 19.—As long as Leo Jordan, former resident of Van Wert, Ohio, pays $50 a month toward the support of his three minor children now in Van Wert, requests from Ohio for extradition papers will be denied by Michigan authorities, it was announced today by the attorney general's office.

The office is carried out, it was said today. Jordan receives $30 a week wages in Lansing besides a $50 a month check from the government.

Aug. 31, 1927.—Capt. Leslie Hamilton, Col. Frederick Minchin and Princes Lowenstein-Wertheim lost flying from England to Canada.

Sept. 6, 1927.—Lloyd Bertaud, James Hill and Philip Payne lost in monoplane Old Glory flying from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome.

Sept. 7, 1927.—Capt. Terry Tully and Lt. James V. Metcalf lost flying from Harbor Grace, Nfld., to London.

Dec. 23, 1927.—Mrs. Frances Grayson, Oskar Omdahl, Brice Goldsborough and Fred Koehler lost in a flight from Garden City, N. Y., to Harbor Grace, Nfld., overseas.

Hiffe and the Hon. Elsie MacKay lost on a trans-Atlantic flight from Cranwell, England.

All the deaths occurred in heavier-than-air machines.

On the other side of the ledger were some notable achievements, such as the 3,639 mile flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from New York to Paris in May, 1927; the Chamberlin-Levine flight of 3,923 miles from New York to Elsieben, Germany, in June, 1927, and the Byrd flight of 3,600 miles from New York later in the month, that ended in the sea off Ver-Sur-Mer, France.

The Pacific likewise has been conquered several times, but likewise took its toll of lives, notably on the Dole race from San Francisco to Hawaii.

BELIEVE LONE FLYER IS LOST

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The name of Lieut. Commander H. C. MacDonald today had been added to the long list of those who mysteriously disappeared as they tried to fly across the north Atlantic and only a few believed he would ever be found or his story ever learned.

Alone and with a daring comparable only to that shown by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, MacDonald started from Harbor Grace, New Foundland Wednesday noon (New York Time) in a tiny Gypsy Moth plane.

His plane was sighted once, The steamer Hardenberg messaged the Leviathan that a plane had passed over her at 12:30 a. m. G.M.T. Friday. That was at a position east of Newfoundland.

Between there and the Irish coast the tiny Moth plane would have encountered vicious storms, ones that ripped over the Atlantic with wind velocities ranging between forty and fifty miles an hour.

There were a few who held to the hope that MacDonald's luck—the luck that carried him successfully through a submarine campaign in the world war and the luck which saved him from cannibalistic tribesmen near Baghdad—still held with the novice pilot.

They pointed out that after he had been sighted by the Hardenberg he might have been carried off course by the high winds and might have landed on the northern tip of Scotland or the British Isles.

Up in the little Lexington home, where MacDonald, his wife and one child lived, there was still hope. "I feel sure he will get here," Mrs. MacDonald told the newspapermen who congregated at her home.

Her eyes were bloodshot from long sleepless hours and plainly she was nervous, but she seemed to have the greatest confidence in her shy and reticent husband who started on the great flying adventure without the usual fanfare of publicity.

Out at Croydon Airfield, where it seemed likely MacDonald might arrive or where at least news of his landing would be relayed, orders had been given to keep night flares burning up until about midnight. At that hour there was no word and the flares were extinguished—a gesture which indicated belief that MacDonald had been added to the roll of the trans-Atlantic missing.

Should he have landed on Iceland, on the northern tip of the British Isles or at sea alongside a non-wireless vessel, it may be days before the fact is known. The small non-wireless vessels will take days in reaching port.

MacDonald flew alone in a plane that did not even completely enclose his body. His head remained above the cockpit, where the bitterly cold North Atlantic winds could strike it.

The plane had only a wing width of twenty-six feet, had only eighty-five horse power and carried only 100 gallons of gasoline. But MacDonald had confidence—for a similar plane had carried him alone into the Far East.

Reports reaching London told of watches being kept along the Irish coast and that weather conditions were good.

JAWARSKI TO FACE
PITTSBURGH CRIME

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19.—Governor Vic Donahey today signed extradition papers for the return to Pittsburgh of Paul Jawarski, Pittsburgh and Detroit gunman and bandit under arrest in Cleveland in connection with the killing of a policeman.

With death sentence is pending against Jawarski in Pittsburgh where he was convicted of killing a paymaster. He and another prisoner shot their way out of the Allegheny County Jail, Pittsburgh, last year, and Jawarski later reappeared in Cleveland.

Jawarski was in Cleveland restaurant when he was recognized. Police were summoned and a gun battle in which one officer was killed and Jawarski was wounded, broke out.

Cleveland authorities planned trying Jawarski for murder but later reached an agreement with Pennsylvania authorities under which the gunman will be put to death in Pennsylvania.

SCOTT FIELD WILL BE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Dr. Hugo Eckener and several Graf Zeppelin companions, arrived here shortly after 7 a. m. from Philadelphia to have breakfast at the White House and keep a long list of engagements during the remainder of the day.

The party was met at the train by Assistant Secretary of War Davison, Assistant Secretary Navy Warner and Major Frank Kennedy of the U. S. air corps.

Kennedy flew across the Atlantic with Eckener in the ZR-3.

Plans to leave Lakehurst, N. J., in the Graf Zeppelin early Wednesday and fly to Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., and stop there for the night.

On Thursday he will fly over Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland, returning to Lakehurst on Thursday night. Dr. Eckener said the Belleville stop would be the only one the craft would make.

His plans call for departure for Europe on Saturday. Dr. Eckener explained he was hastening the return because bad weather already had set in over the Atlantic and he wished to avoid as much of it as possible.

an opportunity to perform the dance, his reply was: "at the end of the rope."

Hickman seemed to enjoy thoroughly examination by alienists. He thought it funny that any one should think him mad. Personally I believe he thoroughly resented the idea.

Every contact with him from the time he said: "How do you do, it is kind of you to come," until he said yesterday, "I will meet you in eternity, goodbye," has impressed the writer with the fact that there was an abnormally brilliant mind that might have achieved great accomplishments had fate directed it in other channels.

The second was for the murder of G. Ivy Thoms, Los Angeles druggist, shot down in a drug store robbery about two years ago.

Many times during the trial of Hickman and his companion, Wellington, for the Thoms killing, I have seen this young boy walk from the court room to the prisoners cage and out of the strained atmosphere, laughing and chatting. I have seen him practice dance steps only a few minutes after emerging from the solemn scenes of the court room.

When inquiry was made by Ray Bogle, Hickman's guard, where Hickman thought he would have

Hickman Abnormally Bright Says Counsel

(The following story on the personality of William Edward Hickman, was written for the United Press by Richard Cantillon, Los Angeles attorney, just after Cantillon had paid his last visit to the condemned youth in San Quentin Prison. Cantillon was a member of Hickman's counsel during his trials in Los Angeles and appeal to the California state supreme court.)

Will the truth of this adage be supported in the case of William Edward Hickman?

I am afraid that the incomprehensible conduct of this boy has created a public hysteria that will leave a lasting mark.

His act struck so into the very basis of our sense of public security that it seems to have rocked it to the very foundations.

It was in the midst of this public excitement that, along with Frank Sievers and Jerome Walsh, I assumed the responsibility of representing Hickman and obtained for him the full measure of legal and constitutional rights.

For a month and a half I sat in the court room while the issue of fact in two murder cases wherein Hickman was the defendant were being disposed of.

Throughout this period an opportunity was presented to observe and study this 20-year-old boy.

Never from the first did Hickman anticipate anything other than the death penalty.

Never once did he exhibit toward that end anything other than a morbid curiosity.

William Edward Hickman was a fatalist in his philosophy of life and he had firmly embedded in his makeup the doctrine of pre-destination.

When in the first case the sentence of death was pronounced upon him, his only statement to us, his counsel, was: "Well, gentlemen, it is a hard race and the state won by a neck."

When in the second case the jury after deliberating recommended life imprisonment there was no exhibition of emotionality.

"They are nice people," he said, referring to the jury, and then from all evidences dismissed the matter from his mind.

The first trial was that of Hickman for the kidnaping and murder of Marion Parker.

Toward evening the warden brought him a letter from his mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman of Kansas City. His face brightened as the letter was handed to him. He tore the envelope open eagerly, and read its contents again and again.

"It was so good of her to write me," he told his warden. "I wish she would have been able to come out, even if only for a little while, before I was brought here."

Hickman ate sparingly during the day, saying he was too busy with his work. For dinner he had fried chicken with country gravy. And he ate with a boyish appetite.

AIR MAIL FLYER IS KILLED

"WILD BILL" HOPSON IS BURNED AFTER CRASH

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 19.—William C. "Wild Bill" Hopson, missing air mail flyer who took off at Clarion, Pa., for Cleveland, Ohio, early yesterday, was found dead in his smashed airplane shortly after 7 a. m. today in a dense woods three miles west of Polk.

Hopson's plane struck a tree on a hillside. It was believed he became confused in a heavy rainstorm and tried to make a forced landing in the darkness.

Realizing that he was off his course, Hopson dropped flares in an attempt to identify the country over which he was flying.

Alva Haynes, manager of the air mail station at Clarion, Pa., planned to take off for Cleveland with the salvaged mail.

Searchers were directed to the scene of Hopson's death by Mrs. Mary Gillind, nurse at the state training school at Polk.

Mrs. Gillind said she was awakened shortly after 2 a. m. Thursday by a red flare shining in her room. From her window, the nurse said she saw a red glow against the sky in the direction of Gillind's Ridge.

As she watched, the nurse said, a sheet of flames leaped skyward and burst in a shower of sparks. For some time after a black cloud hung over the spot, she said.

Mrs. Gillind did not report the incident until the following morning.

Planes from the Clarion airport had circled over the wooded section without finding the wrecked plane. In some places, the land parties reported, the undergrowth was fifteen feet high, obscuring the view from overhead.

Hopson's plane was eight miles off his course when the roar of his motor was last heard, just south of Polk.

Sept. 7, 1927—Capt. Terry Tully and Lt. James V. Metcalf lost flying from Harbor Grace, Nfld., to London.

Dec. 23, 1927—Mrs. Frances Grayson, Oskar Omdahl, Brice Goldsborough and Fred Koehler lost in a flight from Garden City, N. Y., to Harbor Grace, enroute overseas.

The party was met at the train by Assistant Secretary of War Davidson, Assistant Secretary Navy Warner and Major Frank Kennedy of the U. S. air corps.

Kennedy flew across the Atlantic with Eckener in the ZR-3.

Plans to leave Lakehurst, N. J., in the Graf Zeppelin early Wednesday and fly to Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., and stop there for the night.

On Thursday he will fly over Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland, returning to Lakehurst on Thursday night. Dr. Eckener said the Belleville stop would be the only one the craft would make.

His plans call for departure for Europe on Saturday. Dr. Eckener explained he was hastening the return because bad weather already had set in over the Atlantic and he wished to avoid as much of it as possible.

HOPES FOR BRITISH PILOT DIMINISH AS NO WORD RECEIVED

Wife Is Hopeful; Fear
Storms Ended Daring Trip

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The name of Lieut. Commander H. C. MacDonald today had been added to the long list of those who mysteriously disappeared as they tried to fly across the north Atlantic and only a few believed he would ever be found or his story ever learned.

Alone and with a daring comparable only to that shown by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, MacDonald started from Harbor Grace, New Foundland Wednesday noon (New York Time) in a tiny Gypsy Moth plane.

His plane was sighted once. The steamer Hardenberg messaged the Leviathan that a plane had passed over her at 12:30 a. m. G.M.T. Friday. That was at a position east of Newfoundland.

Between there and the Irish coast the tiny Moth plane would have encountered vicious storms, ones that ripped over the Atlantic with wind velocities ranging between forty and fifty miles an hour.

There were a few who held to the hope that MacDonald's luck—the luck that carried him successfully through a submarine campaign in the world war and the luck which saved him from cannibalistic tribesmen near Baghdad—still held with the novice pilot.

They pointed out that after he had been sighted by the Hardenberg, he might have been carried off course by the high winds and might have landed on the northern tip of Scotland or the British Isles.

Up in the little Lexington home, where MacDonald, his wife and one child lived, there was still hope. "I feel sure he will get here," Mrs. MacDonald told the newspapermen who congregated at her home.

Her eyes were bloodshot from long sleepless hours and plainly she was nervous, but she seemed to have the greatest confidence in her shy and reticent husband who started on the great flying adventure without the usual fanfare of publicity.

Out at Croydon Airdrome, where it seemed likely MacDonald might arrive or where at least news of his landing would be relayed, officers had been given to keep night flares burning up until about midnight. At that hour there was no word and the flares were extinguished—a gesture which indicated belief that MacDonald had been added to the roll of the trans-Atlantic missing.

Should he have landed on the northern tip of the British Isles or at sea alongside a non-wireless vessel, it may be days before the fact is known. The small non-wireless vessels will take days in reaching port.

MacDonald flew alone in a plane that did not even completely enclose his body. His head remained above the cockpit, where the bitter cold North Atlantic winds could strike it.

The plane had only a wing width of twenty-six feet, had only eighty-five horse power and carried only 100 gallons of gasoline. But MacDonald had confidence—for a similar plane had carried him alone into the Far East.

Reports reaching London told of watches being kept along the Irish coast and that weather conditions were good.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Dr. Hugo Eckener and several Graf Zeppelin companions, arrived here shortly after 7 a. m. from Philadelphia to have breakfast at the White House and keep a long list of engagements during the remainder of the day.

The party was met at the train by Assistant Secretary of War Davidson, Assistant Secretary Navy Warner and Major Frank Kennedy of the U. S. air corps.

Kennedy flew across the Atlantic with Eckener in the ZR-3.

Plans to leave Lakehurst, N. J., in the Graf Zeppelin early Wednesday and fly to Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., and stop there for the night.

Hickman Abnormally Bright Says Counsel

(The following story on the personality of William Edward Hickman, was written for the United Press by Richard Cantillon, Los Angeles attorney, just after Cantillon had paid his last visit to the condemned youth in San Quentin Prison. Cantillon was a member of Hickman's counsel during his trials in Los Angeles and appeal to the California state supreme court.)

By RICHARD H. CANTILLON
SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Oct. 19.—All resentment against a man is buried with him in his grave, it is said.

Will the truth of this adage be supported in the case of William Edward Hickman?

I am afraid that the incomprehensible conduct of this boy has created a public hysteria that will leave a lasting mark.

His act struck so into the very basis of our sense of public security that it seems to have rocked it to the very foundations.

It was in the midst of this public excitement that, along with Frank Slevers and Jerome Walsh, I assumed the responsibility of representing Hickman and obtained for him the full measure of legal and constitutional rights.

For a month and a half I sat in the court room while the issue of fact in two murder cases wherein Hickman was the defendant were being disposed of.

Throughout this period an opportunity was presented to observe and study this 20-year-old boy.

Never from the first did Hickman anticipate anything other than the death penalty.

Never once did he exhibit toward death anything other than a morbid curiosity.

William Edward Hickman was a fatalist in his philosophy of life and he had firmly embedded in his makeup the doctrine of predestination.

When in the first case the sentence of death was pronounced upon him, his only statement to us, his counsel, was: "Well, gentlemen, it is a hard race and the state won by a neck."

When in the second case the jury after deliberating recommended life imprisonment there was no exhibition of emotion.

"They are nice people," he said, referring to the jury, and then from all evidences dismissed the matter from his mind.

The first trial was that of Hickman for the kidnapping and murder of Marion Parker.

The second was for the murder of G. Ivy Thoms, Los Angeles druggist, shot down in a drug store robbery about two years ago.

Many times during the trial of Hickman and his companion, Welby Hunt, for the Thoms killing, I have seen this young boy walk from the court room to the prisoners cage and out of the strained atmosphere, laughing and chatting.

I have seen him practice dance steps only a few minutes after emerging from the solemn scenes of the court room.

When inquiry was made by Ray Bogie, Hickman's guard, where Hickman thought he would have an opportunity to perform the dance, his reply was: "at the end of the rope."

Hickman seemed to enjoy thoroughly examination by alienists. He thought it funny that any one should think him mad. Personally I believe he thoroughly resented the idea.

Every contact with him from the time he said: "How do you do, it is kind of you to come," until he said yesterday, "I will meet you in eternity, goodbye," has impressed the writer with the fact that here was an abnormally brilliant mind that might have achieved great accomplishments had fate directed it in other channels.

DAVEY SCHEDULED TO SPEAK HERE EARLY FRIDAY EVENING

Greene County Democrats will rally around their standard for the first county-wide meeting of the campaign Friday night when Congressman Martin L. Davey, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, delivers a speech at City Hall Theater at 7 o'clock.

The subject of the candidate's talk has not been announced. Following his talk, Congressman Fritz G. Lanham, Texas, a speaker from the National Democratic headquarters, will make an address.

Congressman Davey will go from Xenia to Springfield, where he will fill a speaking engagement at 8:30 o'clock.

Thus far Mr. Davey's campaign tour has carried him over approximately 15,000 miles into every section of the state. He was to continue his tour Friday with addresses at London and Washington, C. H. besides the Xenia and Springfield appearances.

FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE IN XENIA

Charged with possessing liquor, John Thomas Mahoney, 32, Springfield, was fined $100 and costs by Judge S. C. Wright in Probate Court Thursday afternoon. He had pleaded guilty. Mahoney was arrested by George Benham, Clark County sheriff, Wednesday upon the request of Greene County authorities, who have been conducting a futile search for him since last June when his home near Jamestown was raided and a small quantity of liquor and parts of a still were confiscated.

GLORIOUS RELIEF FROM RHEUMATISM THROUGH KONJOLA

This Man Suffered Agonies With Stomach and Kidney Troubles

This surprising medical compound, Konjola, which the Konjola Man is explaining in person to large crowds daily at the Gallaher Drug store, Xenia, has not only become the sensation of this city, but is also the talk of the cities and towns throughout this section. For instance, just a few days ago Mr. J. M. Snodgrass, R. F. D. 1, Jamestown, Ohio (near Xenia), made the following statement about Konjola while talking to the Konjola Man.

"Konjola stopped the rheumatism from bothering me and it greatly relieved the stomach and kidney troubles that were part of me for so many years," said Mr. Snodgrass. "I want to endorse this remedy to the public for it surely did the work in my case."

"The stomach trouble I had was the worst affliction I ever heard of. It seemed that as soon as I would eat anything gas would form in the pit of my stomach and rise against my heart and chest. The pressure of this gas was so great that at times I could hardly get my breath. A hot, vile liquid would rise into my mouth and made it burn like fire. This ailment had been with me for five long years and during that time I had done everything I ever heard of for relief, but to no avail. I was terribly constipated too, and in spite of taking all kinds of laxatives the trouble remained. Then rheumatism set in and I was in agony with that. It seemed to center in my shoulder blades and to spread to all parts of my body. When I would climb the stairs I would take me an hour. I couldn't even raise my arms to comb my hair. Even the weight of clothing hurt me. My kidneys were in an awfully disordered condition and at night when I went to bed I had to rise four or five times due to weakness in my bladder. When I got up the next morning I felt tired and worn out."

"Finally a friend told me about Konjola and how it had helped him and so I finally decided to try it. Almost the very first bottle seemed to help me and as I continued with the treatment I could notice a wonderful improvement all over my body. It seemed to be what my body had always been waiting for and it cleansed my system of all those poisons that had long been there. I kept on taking this medicine until I soon had completed a full treatment. Now, my stomach doesn't bother me at all. I can sit down to the table and eat whatever is placed before me and not suffer one bit. The gas doesn't form any more and now I never did away with the rheumatism and now I haven't an ache or a pain anywhere. I feel fine now and I want to endorse this medicine all that I can."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, Ohio, where he is daily meeting the public, introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE IN XENIA

Charged with possessing liquor, John Thomas Mahoney, 32, Springfield, was fined $100 and costs by Judge S. C. Wright in Probate Court Thursday afternoon. He had pleaded guilty. Mahoney was arrested by George Benham, Clark County sheriff, Wednesday upon the request of Greene County authorities, who have been conducting a full search for him since last June when his home near Jamestown was raided and a small quantity of liquor and parts of a still were confiscated.

GLORIOUS RELIEF FROM RHEUMATISM THROUGH KONJOLA

This Man Suffered Agonies With Stomach and Kidney Troubles

This surprising medical compound, Konjola, which the Konjola Man is explaining in person to large crowds daily at the Gallagher Drug store, Xenia, has not only become the sensation of this city,

MR. J. M. SNODGRASS
E. Main St.

but is also the talk of the cities and towns throughout this section. For instance, just a few days ago Mr. J. M. Snodgrass, R. F. D. 1, Jamestown, Ohio (near Xenia), made the following statement about Konjola while talking to the Konjola Man.

"Konjola stopped the rheumatism from bothering me and it greatly relieved the stomach and kidney troubles that were part of me for so many years," said Mr. Snodgrass. "I want to endorse this remedy to the public for it surely did the work in my case."

"The stomach trouble I had was the worst affliction I ever heard of. It seemed that as soon as I would eat anything gas would form in the pit of my stomach and rise against my heart and chest. The pressure of this gas was so great that at times I could hardly get my breath. A hot, vile liquid would rise into my mouth and made it burn like fire. This ailment had been with me for five long years and during that time I had done everything I ever heard of for relief, but to no avail. I was terribly constipated too, and in spite of taking all kinds of laxatives the trouble remained. Then rheumatism set in and I was in agony with that. It seemed to center in my shoulder blades and to spread to all parts of my body. When I would climb the stairs it would take me an hour. I couldn't even raise my arms to comb my hair. Even the weight of clothing hurt me. My kidneys were in an awfully disordered condition and at night when I went to bed I had to rise four or five times due to weakness in my bladder. When I got up the next morning I felt tired and worn out."

"Finally a friend told me about Konjola and how it had helped him and so I finally decided to try it. Almost the very first bottle seemed to help me and I continued with the treatment. I could notice a wonderful improvement all over my body. It seemed to be what my body had always been waiting for and it cleansed my system of all those poisons that had long been there. I kept on taking this medicine until I soon had completed a full treatment. Now, my stomach doesn't bother me at all. I can eat down to the table and eat what ever is placed before me and not suffer one bit. The gas doesn't form any more and now I never did away with the rheumatism and now I haven't an ache or a pain anywhere. I feel fine now and I want to endorse this medicine all that I can."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallagher Drug Store, Xenia, Ohio where he is daily meeting the public, introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

B. P. W. Club Celebrates Eighth Anniversary

CELEBRATING its eighth birthday, the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club featured Halloween in an entertaining program given in connection with the October dinner meeting at the Knights of Pythias hall Thursday night.

Miss Nellie McKay, as a "witch," rode a broomstick into the midst of the company seated about the tables following dinner, and uttering prophecies and incantations in bits of original verse, drew from a black pot over a Halloween "fire" in the center of the room, long stemmed chrysanthemums. These she presented in turn to Miss Elsie Canby, the president, and the two past presidents who were in attendance, Miss Allegra Hawes and Miss Faye Ledbetter.

Pumpkin lanterns decorated the tables and the girls made merry with Halloween favors, using them to cheer the group standing by the members. Miss Eleanor McDonnell, gifted young singer, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Mary McDonnell, contributed several song numbers. The program was arranged by the hostess committee for the evening and was led by the Misses Helen Ford and Helen Hurley of the committee.

At the business meeting following dinner and the social session, the club voted almost unanimously against a proposal that the organization sponsor the annual sale of Chautauque tickets.

Miss Allegra Hawes, as chairman of the legislative committee, urged the members of the club to vote at the November election. A prize of $150 she said, has been offered by the national federation to the club that can show a 100 per cent vote on the part of its members.

XENIA MARRIED TO DAYTON GIRL

Mrs. Mary Mattox, 403 W. Main St., is announcing the marriage of her son, Mr. Richard G. Mattox, U. S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., to Miss Catherine K. Cribbin, 3214 Riverside Drive, Dayton, which took place at Fort Thomas, Ky., Tuesday, October 9.

Mr. Mattox left Tuesday night, October 16, for Great Lakes to finish his training, while Mrs. Mattox will make her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Cribbin, Dayton.

When your child is sleepless.

This remedy rarely fails.

Constipation is a common cause of sleeplessness, both in children and adults. When a child is wakeful and fretful, see if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour, irritating waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels, and you have no more anxiety over the child's excitability and wakefulness at night. Children love this harmless "fruit" laxative. It banishes biliousness and constipation, regulates the bowels and insures pious spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and helps to build a strong constitution.

See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California," so you won't be imposed on by imitators.—Adv.

ONE CENT A DOSE

For fifty cents, your druggist will sell you 65 of Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation. Keep them in your medicine chest. Every day that you do not have a natural movement of the bowels, take one of these coated pills. Easy to swallow and efficient in their action.

MISS MOOREHEAD CHOSEN HEAD OF MISSION SOCIETY

Miss Margaret Moorehead, this city, whose mother, Mrs. W. G. Moorehead, was the first vice president of the Woman's Missionary Society, Xenia Presbytery, was elected president of that body at the annual convention at First U. P. Church, Columbus, Thursday.

Second U. P. Church, Xenia, was the birthplace of the society and it is fitting that Miss Moorehead be chosen to lead the work for the coming year, since her mother took such an active part in its inception. The society is forty-nine years old.

Thirty Xenia women attended the sessions Thursday. Roll call was answered with a thought or current event in connection with the coming election. Addresses were made by Miss Mary Kyle, who represents the society's work in India; the Rev. Glenn Reed, of The Sudan and the Rev. Mary Roy of Egypt.

MAKE PLANS FOR SUPPER AT MEETING

Plans for an oyster supper, at the church, Thursday evening, October 25, were made by the Ladies Aid Society, Old Town M. E. Church, Thursday afternoon.

On the supper menu, the society will also serve celery, pickles, sandwiches, pie and coffee.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Willett, Beaver Creek Road, November 15. The social committee for the next meeting will include: Mrs. Mildred Greenwald, Mrs. Hazel Harner, Mrs. Ethel Harner and Mrs. Sarah Harner.

MARRIAGE TAKES PLACE THURSDAY

Mr. J. M. Christy of Jamestown and Miss Erna Curry, Wilmington, were quietly married in Covington, Ky., Thursday.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Ramshaw.

The Children's Missionary Society, Trinity M. E. Church, will meet at the church Saturday at 2:30 p. m. when Mrs. Carrie Geyer will speak. This is the dues-payment meeting and a full attendance is desired. An invitation is extended to all the children of the church.

The Berean Bible Class of the Reformed Church, will give a masquerade party at the church, Tuesday night, October 23, at 8 o'clock. The social committee urges all Bereans and their children to come and enjoy the social time.

There will be an election for the office of Worthy Vice President, Friday night, October 19, at the Eagles Hall. State Secretary M. L. Brown will be present. Luncheon will be served after the business meeting.

Miss Dorothy Norckauer is confined to her home on Hill St., with a nervous breakdown.

Mrs. Linton Goodwin, Cincinnati, is spending two weeks with her brother-in-law and sister, Attorney and Mrs. F. L. Johnson, N. Galloway St.

Mr. Stephen G. Phillips, prominent horseman, who has been starting the races through the east for several weeks is at his home here for a visit. His last engagement was at Toledo, O.

Mrs. W. H. Tilford will entertain the choir of the First Presbyterian Church at her home on N. Detroit St., Friday evening.

BRIDGE PARTY FOR MISS NEGUS THURSDAY

Another of the series of parties in compliment to Miss Mildred Negus, bride-elect of Mr. Donald Weaver, was entertained by Mrs. Antil Stephens, and Mrs. Philip Buck of this city and Mrs. Eugene Curlett, Dayton, at the home of Mrs. Stephens, Thursday evening.

Four tables of bridge were in play. Miss Lois Purdom won high score prize and Miss Louise Baldwin received the consolation prize.

Miss Negus was presented with a dainty guest prize.

A prettily appointed luncheon was served after cards. The Halloween season was suggested in the decorations.

Mrs. Walter McClure, Mrs. Robert Cross, Mrs. Frank Zell, Mrs. William White, Mrs. Maurice Silver, Mrs. Jeff Marlatt and Mrs. Carcy of Waynesville were guests of the Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Washburn, Trinity M. E. parsonage, Thursday.

Attorney and Mrs. F. L. Johnson, Mrs. Ward M. Huston and Mrs. Linton Goodwin attended the races at Latonia, Thursday.

Mr. Elmer Shigley, Jamestown, underwent a serious operation at the McClellan Hospital, Thursday morning. He is recuperating favorably.

Frances and Bobby Jo Babb, little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert L. Babb, are entertaining their playmates with a Halloween party at their home on N. Galloway St., Friday evening.

Miss Virginia Cooper, Greenfield, Ind., is the guest of Mrs. Charles B. Lawson, W. Third St.

Dr. F. M. Chambliss, county coroner, who has been ill several days with toxemia, will be able to return to his offices Saturday.

District Deputy Mary Dey, of Franklin, O., will attend the meeting of Zanetta Council, No. 120, D. of P., Monday evening at the Red Men's Hall. All members are urged to attend.

B. P. W. Club Celebrates Eighth Anniversary

CELEBRATING its eighth birthday, the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club featured Halloween in an entertaining program given in connection with the October dinner meeting at the Knights of Pythias hall Thursday night.

Miss Nellie McKay, as a "witch," rode a broomstick into the midst of the company seated about the tables following dinner, and uttering prophecies and incantations in bits of original verse, drew from a black pot over a Halloween "fire" in the center of the room, long stemmed chrysanthemums. These she presented in turn to Miss Elsie Canby, the president, and the two past presidents who were in attendance, Miss Allegra Hawes and Miss Faye Ledbetter.

Pumpkin lanterns decorated the tables and the girls made merry with Halloween favors, using them to cheer the group stunting by the members. Miss Eleanor McDonald, gifted young singer, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Mary McDonnell, contributed several song numbers. The program was arranged by the hostess committee for the evening and was led by the Misses Helen Ford and Helen Hurley of the committee.

At the business meeting following dinner and the social session, the club voted almost unanimously against a proposal that the organization sponsor the annual sale of Chautauqua tickets.

Miss Allegra Hawes, as chairman of the legislative committee, urged the members of the club to vote at the November election. A prize of $150 she said, has been offered by the national federation to the club that can show a 100 per cent vote on the part of its members.

XENIAN MARRIED TO DAYTON GIRL

Miss Mary Mattox, 463 W. Main St., is announcing the marriage of her son, Mr. Richard C. J. Mattox, U. S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., to Miss Catherine K. Cribbin, 3214 Riverside Drive, Dayton, which took place at Fort Thomas, Ky., Tuesday, October 9.

Mr. Mattox left Tuesday night, October 10, for Great Lakes to finish his training, while Mrs. Mattox will make her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Cribbin, Dayton.

When your child is sleepless.

This remedy rarely fails.

Constipation is a common cause of sleeplessness, both in children and adults. When a child is wakeful and fretful, see if tongue is coated, if this is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour, irritating waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels, and you have no more anxiety over the child's excitability and wakefulness at night. Children love this harmless "fruit" laxative. It banishes biliousness and constipation, regulates the bowels and insures pure blood, a clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and helps to build a strong constitution.

See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California," so you won't be imposed on by imitators.

ONE CENT A DOSE

For fifty cents, your druggist will sell you 65 of Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation. Keep them for your medicine chest. Every day that you do not have a natural movement of the bowels, take one of these coated pills. Easy to swallow and efficient in their action.

bership. Miss Elsie Canby, club president, supplemented this appeal, pointing out that the organization is non-partisan, but would like to see its members interested enough in the issues of the day to exercise their franchise.

Announcement of a Halloween masque party, with details to be given later, was made by Miss Maud Votis of the entertainment committee.

The hostess committee was composed of: Miss Helen Ford, Miss Helen Hurley, Miss Iva Laycock, Miss Imogene Kester, Miss Katherine Graham and Miss Glenna Dinwiddie.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR PASTOR'S WIFE THURSDAY

As a gracious compliment to Mrs. D. A. Sellers, wife of the pastor of the First Reformed Church, who are leaving the city, Mrs. W. L. Miller received thirty-nine women of the congregation at her home on Dixie E. Main St., Thursday afternoon.

The guests presented Mrs. Sellers with a handsome silk scarf as a farewell gift. A delightful social time was spent and luncheon served.

GUESTS RECEIVED FOR CARDS THURSDAY

Mrs. O. W. Dice, Dayton, received guests for two tables of 500 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dice, E. Main St., this city, Tuesday evening.

A Halloween color scheme was carried out in the favors and refreshment course.

Mrs. Rose Lewis and Mrs. Helen Baughman were awarded score prizes.

The women of the First Reformed Church, will serve their usual election supper, November 6.

Miss Lena Bales will entertain members of Delta Theta Tau at her home on the Hoop Road, Monday evening.

Mrs. Howell B. Huston and daughter, Claire Jean, are leaving Friday evening for Columbus to spend a week as the guests of Miss Lucile Hughes. Mrs. Huston will attend the State-Michigan football game Saturday.

Miss Mildred Hyman, N. King St., will spend the week end in Columbus, the guest of Miss Inez Livingston, Bexley. They will attend the Ohio State-Michigan football game Saturday.

Mrs. Cora Faus, Clayton, N. Mex. formerly of Xenia is the guest of Mrs. Frank Kyne, Upper Bellbrook Pike, and other relatives.

The Ladies Aid Society will serve dinner at the First M. E. Church, Thursday evening, October 25.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Blair, (Theodore Stafford) of Bellbrook Ave., have named their daughter, born October 4, Barbara Anne.

Mrs. Ernest Muterspaw entertained thirteen friends at her home Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Nelson Mason's thirty-ninth birthday. The evening was spent playing cards. Refreshments were served at a late hour. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Alva Morgan and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Owens and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Muterspaw and son, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Mason.

Mrs. C. E. Arbogast is leaving Saturday for Louisville, for a visit with her mother, Mrs. F. W. Keisker.

MISS MOOREHEAD CHOSEN HEAD OF MISSION SOCIETY

Miss Margaret Moorehead, this city, whose mother, Mrs. W. G. Moorehead, was the first vice president of the Woman's Missionary Society, Xenia Presbytery, was elected president of that body at the annual convention at First U. P. Church, Columbus, Thursday.

Second U. P. Church, Xenia, was the birthplace of the society and it is fitting that Miss Moorehead be chosen to lead the work for the coming year, since her mother took such an active part in its inception. The society is forty-nine years old.

Thirty Xenia women attended the sessions Thursday. Roll call was answered with a thought or current event in connection with the coming election. Addresses were made by Miss Mary Kyle, who represents the society's work in Indiana, the Rev. Glenn Reed, of The Shdan and the Rev. Mary Roy of Egypt.

MAKE PLANS FOR SUPPER AT MEETING

Plans for an oyster supper, at the church, Thursday evening, October 25, were made by the Ladies Aid Society, Old Town M. E. Church, Thursday afternoon.

On the supper menu, the society will also serve celery, pickles, sandwiches, pie and coffee. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Willett, Beaver Creek Road, November 15. The social committee for the next meeting will include: Mrs. Mildred Greynwald, Mrs. Hazel Harner, Mrs. Ethel Harner and Mrs. Sarah Harner.

MARRIAGE TAKES PLACE THURSDAY

Mr. J. M. Christy of Jamestown and Miss Erma Curry, Wilmington, were quietly married in Covington, Ky., Thursday.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Ramshaw.

The Children's Missionary Society, Trinity M. E. Church, will meet at the church Saturday at 2:30 p. m. when Mrs. Carrie Geyer will speak. This is the dues-payment meeting and a full attendance is desired. An invitation is extended to all the children of the church.

The Berean Bible Class of the Reformed Church, will give a masquerade party at the church, Tuesday night, October 23, at 8 o'clock. The social committee urges all Bereans and their children to come and enjoy the social time.

There will be an election for the office of Worthy Vice President, Friday night, October 19, at the Eagles Hall. State Secretary M. L. Brown will be present. Luncheon will be served after the business meeting.

Miss Dorothy Norckauer is confined to her home on Hill St., with a nervous breakdown.

Mrs. Linton Goodwin, Cincinnati, is spending two weeks with her brother-in-law and sister, Attorney and Mrs. F. L. Johnson, N. Gallows St.

Mr. Stephen G. Phillips, prominent horseman, who has been starting the races through the east for several weeks is at his home here for a visit. His last engagement was at Toledo, O.

Mrs. W. H. Telford will entertain the choir of the First Presbyterian Church at her home on N. Detroit St., Friday evening.

BRIDGE PARTY FOR MISS NEGUS THURSDAY

Another of the series of parties in compliment to Miss Mildred Negus, bride-elect of Mr. Donald Weaver, was entertained by Mrs. Antil Stephens, and Mrs. Philip Buck of this city and Mrs. Eugene Curlett, Dayton, at the home of Mrs. Stephens, Thursday evening.

Four tables of bridge were in play. Miss Lois Purdon won high score prize and Miss Louise Baldwin received the consolation prize. Miss Negus was presented with a dainty guest prize.

A prettily appointed luncheon was served after cards. The Halloween season was suggested in the decorations.

Mrs. Walter McClure, Mrs. Robert Cross, Mrs. Frank Zell, Mrs. William White, Mrs. Maurice Silver, Mrs. Jeff Marlatt and Mrs. Carcy of Waynesville were guests of the Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Washburn, Trinity M. E. parsonage, Thursday.

Attorney and Mrs. F. L. Johnson, Mrs. Ward M. Huston and Mrs. Linton Goodwin attended the races at Latonia, Thursday.

Mr. Elmer Shigley, Jamestown, underwent a serious operation at the McClellan Hospital, Thursday morning. He is recuperating favorably.

Frances and Bobby Jo Babb, little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert L. Babb, are entertaining their playmates with a Halloween party at their home on N. Gallows St., Friday evening.

Miss Virginia Cooper, Greenfield, Ind., is the guest of Mrs. Charles B. Lawson, W. Third St.

Dr. F. M. Chambliss, county coroner, who has been ill several days with toxemia, will be able to return to his offices Saturday.

District Deputy Mary Dey, of Franklin, O., will attend the meeting of Zanetta Council, No. 120, D. of P., Monday evening at the Red Men's Hall. All members are urged to attend.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

EVERLASTING STRENGTH—Trust ye in the Lord forever: for in the Lord JEHOVAH is everlasting strength.—Isa. 26:4.

WORKING PEOPLE'S WAGES

None of us who work day after day spend much time trying to learn about the tariff. The vast majority are not brought up to it, as it means digging into figures, which most of us dislike. We realize vaguely that there is a difference between a high tariff and a low tariff, even though we do not know everything relating to the tax on products shipped here from abroad and products shipped from here to other parts of the world.

But this we know and are sure of: We get ten times better wages than many working people abroad and we live infinitely better than they even dream of living.

We know this, too, about the tariff: The pay roll for those of us who work for a living in this country is $600,000,000 a week—think of it, six hundred million dollars. And we know, also, that this would not be possible without a Republican protective tariff we would be down to the level of foreign labor and living conditions.

Here is something more we know: Democrats, experimenting with the tariff cut $100,000,000 a week from the American pay roll, which means the man getting $6 a day slipped back to $3 or $4 a day. The employer could do nothing about it, because he, too, suffered from Democratic tariff reduction. To working people a dollar and a half is a big loss and proves we need Herbert Hoover and a protective tariff so we can go on happily as we are and not as a Democratic tariff would make us—like the working people of foreign countries.

RADIO SPELLBINDING

Earlier in the political campaign there was considerable talk that old-time methods of campaigning might be revived, with marching clubs and torchlight processions. But the canvass is now drawing to a close, with little of the old hurrah boys' style of campaigning, and new methods are proving very useful.

Probably information supplied by newspapers and radio broadcasting will make the most votes of any of the new methods of campaigning. As one listens to a discussion of political issues thus brought into our homes, it seems a tremendous gain in its power to educate the people.

A good political rally is always educational. But it depends much on mass psychology. The speaker not merely tries to convince his hearers by reason, but he desires to rouse their enthusiasm so that there shall be a lot of applause. The cheers of the crowd win many votes where the reason is not convinced. People insensibly drift with the sentiment of the environment about them.

The radio orator can not depend so much on the cheers of his partisans to help his arguments over the weak places.

The carefully prepared speech delivered in this way, with the ideas concentrated into a 15 or 30-minute address, is probably more effective than the address at some rally, where the speaker is tempted by the enthusiasm of his audience to wander from the point and use too many words. The quiet talk to millions of homes will sway a tremendous lot of votes.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

THE WHOLE MAN

Standing before 3,000 scientists in Glasgow, the president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science told his distinguished audience that man has a soul.

"Science is not setting forth to destroy the soul," he said, "but to keep body and soul together."

It is a significant fact that more of the great thinkers and research workers of the world are coming to the conclusion that man is more than an animal. Evolution cannot account for everything. We are not solely dependent upon instinct. There are the achievements of the mind and soul that have to be accounted for. The whole man is more than a biological specimen.

DOES EDUCATION PAY?

A Milwaukee woman, Catherine Marie Rice, arguing with somebody else as to whether education has much to do with increasing one's chances of success in life, quotes effectively from a book called "The Money Value of Education," by A. Caswell Ellis. One learns from that book that a study of the distinguished men of America shows that, with no schooling, only 31 out of 5,000,000 attained distinction.

With elementary schooling, of 33,000,000, 808 attained distinction.

With high school education, of 2,000,000, 1,245 attained distinction.

With college education, of 1,000,000, 5,768 attained distinction.

The child with no schooling has one chance in 150,000 of performing distinguished service, with elementary education he has four times the chances; with high school education 87 times the chance; with college education 800 times the chance.

From the ranks of the college graduates have come 55 per cent of our presidents, 36 per cent of the members of congress, 47 per cent of the speakers of the house, 54 per cent of the vice presidents, 62 per cent of the secretaries of state, 50 per cent of the secretaries of the treasury, 67 per cent of the attorneys general, 69 per cent of the justices of the supreme court.

PEANUTS

Eating peanuts is more than a pastime. In fact it is more than a habit. A nutrition expert of the department of agriculture calls attention to the high value of peanuts as food. Keep a bag on your desk and you won't have to go to lunch, or you wouldn't have to if the affairs of the world didn't have to be settled at the luncheon clubs. Personally, the writer, not despising peanuts, still votes for corn on the cob as the world's premier food.

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK — Edward W. (Daddy) Browning, who married Peaches Browning and thereby occupied the first page of the tabloids for a long time, has returned to the conservative papers' columns. He not only argues, but agrees to pay all costs to convert Central park reservoir into a super-swimming pool for children. It no longer is used as a reservoir.

Says Daddy: "I will spend one million dollars to convert this old, useless body of water into a modern swimming pool and skating rink. I will turn it over to the city free of cost. And I don't want my name connected with it henceforth."

Browning is in the real estate business. He has an office on upper Broadway—to which he invites reporters when he has a plan under way.

In one room he has a floor covered with letters, protected by plate glass, and the ceiling and the walls likewise are coated with epistles from the lonely, all to Daddy Browning—some addressed merely, "Daddy Browning, New York."

Daddy no longer adopts girls, but he announces he has 400,000 gifts purchased already for distribution to very small boys and girls in New York this Christmas.

I have a friend who lived in the same hotel as Daddy Browning, and went to the same barbershop. The hotel is a quiet family place, and Browning sedately went to his office every morning in a beautiful chauffeur-driven limousine.

At the barbershop, he was known for his $5 tips to manicures—or was it $10?

I hope this doesn't start another wave of letters toward Daddy. He can't possibly read all his mail—and doesn't.

Vaudeville acts are looking around New York for other work. They are beginning to fear the talking movie vaudeville acts will substitute for human turns.

Press agents, too, are beginning to feel the effect of the talkies. In order to keep its talking vaudeville programs secret until release, performers are prohibited, by on contract at last, from having individual press agents.

If May West is convicted on the charge of presenting an absence play, and is sent to prison (the extreme penalty is three years) she will damage a successful play of hers, in which she is the star. In fact, it's doubtful whether the play would be a play without her.

For the third time within a few weeks a well-known woman has jumped or fallen from an apartment hotel window. Such things run in cycles, metropolitan editors will tell me.

Steamships are being dolled up for their winter cruises. It's the popular thing now to go around the world (or nearly) on an escorted tour. Larger vessels are required each year. This will be the biggest year of all. Some steamship companies depend on these tours to turn the tide in the matter of earnings.

Rents remain stiff in Greenwich Village and streets remain dirty.

Announcement by the tabloid Daily News that its straw vote poll showed Al Smith would carry New York state by approximately 200,000 and New York City by 600,000 gave the Republicans no little concern. At that, there are Hoover name plates in New York City.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

The head of the corporation recently had his salary raised from $35,000 to $50,000. Some one asked him if reaching this flattering salary figure gave him the biggest thrill of his business career.

"No," he said, "the greatest kick a man can ever hope to get from business is when he first discovers that he is able to support himself and supply all present needs by his own effort. The biggest job I ever had was one that paid me $12 a week; on that salary for the first time I was able not only to buy my own clothes but to pay board to my father and mother. I was no longer dependent on or beholden to anyone!"

Pineapple Waffles

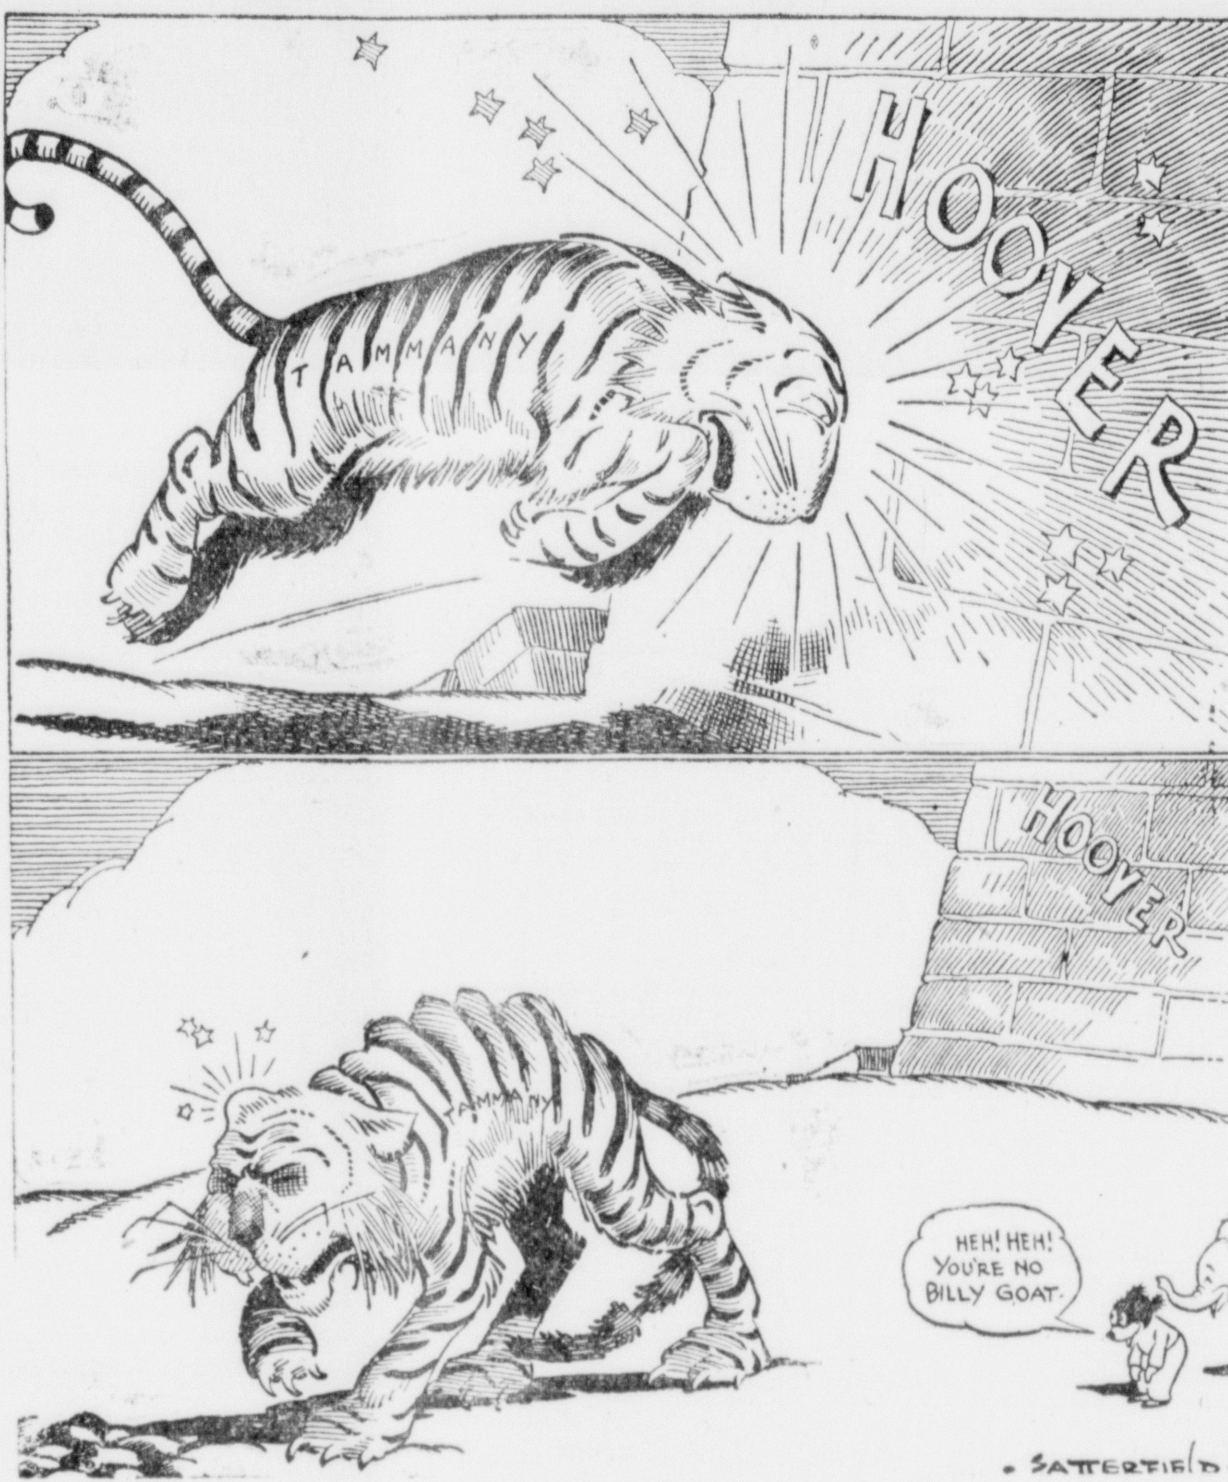

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Beat three egg yolks well and add one and three-fourths cups milk. Add two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, and one-half teaspoon salt sifted together. Add six tablespoons melted butter and two-thirds cup drained, crushed pineapple. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Bake. Serve with the following sauce and pass cups of American cheese.

Pineapple Sauce—Simmer one cup crushed pineapple, one cup sugar, and three-fourths cup water until syrupy. Add one drop oil of peppermint. Cool to lukewarm and serve on waffles.

We assume that the first day of the millennium will be given up wholly to wars and dry cleaning as to how the liquor problem could be solved.—Louisville Times.

THE STONEWALL

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Nobody who ever was congratulated on sitting pretty in what resembled a mighty nice job can have missed the collateral experience of feeling that those who considered him so lucky would have guessed again if they had had the least idea of all the grief that accompanied the darn thing.

That is to say, the very best job generally looks a great deal better to bystanders than it does to the incumbent.

Maybe the presidency of the United States is no exception.

At any rate, Calvin Coolidge acts like it.

Unless he is a tremendously relieved man at seeing his White House term drawing toward its close there is nothing in indications.

He certainly has gained in weight.

Wrinkles of worry have left his face.

His temper never has been violent, but sometimes, there is plenty of testimony, it has been crabbed. From all accounts it is beatific now.

Whereas he has been snappish, he is uniformly kindly today.

The wind-up of a presidential term necessarily is rather flat.

People look ahead — at least for a few weeks, or even until next March. They can taste their bread-and-butter that far in advance if not until 1932-33.

So we hear a great deal about Herbert Hoover and Governor Smith, but not much about President Coolidge any more.

His return from his vacation was pretty tame in the news.

The "campaign" monopolized the front pages. Calvin has been "played down."

All the same, even yet, the president would be the "whole thing" if occasion arose.

For instance, imagine a war situation—developing suddenly! Could a retiring president commit his successor to a "policy"—in a mere matter of days?

Not that there is any prospect of it.

Yet the possibility of some such responsibility hangs over the White House day and night—just as the possibility of an unpleasant telegram hangs over most households in the land.

The possibility of an emergency message which he may have to answer for 120 millions of his countrymen is enough to draw lines in any man's face.

The impression I always have had of Calvin Coolidge is that of a man who was conscientiously holding down a job.

It never seemed to me that he got much kick out of it.

Theodore Roosevelt undoubtedly did. So, unquestionably, did Woodrow Wilson in a different way.

President Coolidge has appeared to me like an individual who took what fate handed to him and did the best with it that he knew how—not intensely interested in it, but determined to do his duty, as he saw it, however it came his way.

I size him as having found it the hardest piece of work he ever undertook in his life.

I believe he regards himself as just what he was—an accidental president, but a pretty average, creditable one, at that, with sense enough to drop out at exactly the right psychological moment, for all concern—himself, his party and the country—no matter how the November election may result.

And about the best balanced president we ever had!

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Habits of Poise and Posture

I have often thought that the better part of grooming is that combination of physical and mental charm which is acquired only through good habits of posture and poise. It is impossible for a woman to make a really pleasing appearance until she is complete mistress of herself, her body and her movements. There never was a woman who merited secondary consideration who had not learned the beauty and good manners of complete poise. Because of that, I am devoting today's talk entirely to the cultivation of first, good posture habits, and second, poise and relaxation.

I recommend relaxation as a first aid to beauty. It may seem contradictory to you to talk of good posture and relaxation in almost the same breath. It is a common mistake to believe that relaxation demands bad sitting position, slouched shoulders, sagging head, etc. As a matter of fact, a bad position is infinitely more trying than an erect posture. An eminent authority said once that erect posture was correct because in this position the weight of the head and upper part of the body is supported properly without the waste of physical effort.

Another good exercise is also a

The first way to cultivate good posture is to inventory your good or bad points. I believe that a great many women have not the faintest idea of how they look from the side view. Large abdomens and round shoulders don't always show when you are face to face with a mirror. However, get a profile view of your figure, and you will know just exactly how you stand. The first effort you must make in cultivating correct posture is to stretch your body as tall as possible. If you can remember always to lengthen your body, you will eventually have a good carriage. Keep pulling all the little muscles of your body up. Should you be troubled with a hollow back, I advocate your beginning an adaptation of the bicycle exercises.

Lie on the floor with your arms stretched above your head, your right knee bent over above your chest, your left leg held up with the knee straight. Change the position of your legs, first slowly, and then rapidly, exactly as though you were working a bicycle. Do not point your toes, but keep your feet at right angles with the chin. Stretch your heels on the upward movement.

Now let us take up the question of poise. I think the best way for a woman to cultivate poise is by going in for dancing lessons. Strange as it may seem to the uninitiate, it is quite easy to learn to dance all by yourself, with no other aid but good phonograph records. No matter how out of step you may be with the universe, the day will dawn when you will find your legs and your arms and your body keeping time to the rhythm of good music. Once you have attained the beauty of rhythmic movement, you will have gone a long way toward acquiring physical poise.

floor one. Lie flat, your arms spread out from the sides. Raise legs and hips from the floor, swinging your legs over your head. Try to hold them for a moment parallel to the floor, then return to the starting position. Finish with the well-known exercise: Stand erect, raise heels and then bend the knees.

Yeast Extracts
"I would like to know what you mean by 'yeast products.' Do you mean yeast? I would like to know, for it would help me very much in my diet."

I said "yeast extracts," not "yeast products." I believe, R. Yeast extracts are flavoring extracts (put out under various trade names) which are made from yeast. These are used for flavoring soups, sauces and vegetables, and they taste like mushrooms and are very delicious. I recommend them because they are very high in vitamin B, the anti-neuritic vitamin. And to those who have to limit their calories because a teaspoonful of the extract, with a cup of hot water, makes a delectable broth and counts so low in calories—only 5—that they can be ignored. If you are interested, we have an article on Balanced Diet.

Varicose Veins
Mrs. P. — The fact that your niece of 30 is not married has no relation to her varicose veins. They are no more prevalent in the single than in the married.

Varicose veins are due to weakness in the walls and valves of the veins. They may be due to any pressure above which causes the blood to dam back slightly, such as by garters or tight belts, and constipation this latter causes varicose veins or hemorrhoids in the rectum. Overweight, long standing, and lack of exercise are factors.

If the veins are prominent enough to be disfiguring, they can be removed surgically. Recently I have developed a method of injecting substances into the veins which causes them to close up. This has been quite successful in the hands of some surgeons, but it is not yet in general use.

No, there are no physicians known as varicose vein specialists. Mrs. P. Any up-to-date surgeon will know all methods for relief. If the case you speak of is not a surgical case, then keeping the foot elevated when sitting, and staying off the feet as much as possible, reducing the weight, if overweight is present, and a system of exercise so that all of the muscles of the body are toned up (this will include the muscles of the veins) will help.

We have an article which goes into the subject a little more in detail.

Mrs. F. — No, there is no treatment for a laceration following childbirth except an operation. Lacerations of any size must be the seat of cancer changes later in life, so it is advisable to have them repaired. It is not a dangerous operation at all.

White Spots on the Nails
White spots on the nails are most frequently due to injury to the roots while manicuring. It will often be observed that the spots will follow the outline of the root of the nail and be spaced according to the manicurings. At other times the nails may be supersensitive and ordinary bumps and knocks may cause white spots.

Mrs. T. — We have an article on the anemia which gives the Minot-Murphy diet in the pernicious type. Your other questions will be answered by our article on the Hygiene of Women.

Tomorrow: Diet in Bright's Disease.

WHY DON'T CHILDREN CONFIDE IN PARENTS? ASKS AN ORPHAN

Why is it that young people having "perfectly good" parents do not tell them all their worries and perplexities, but must needs confide in me or others who write a similar column? There are two reasons for this, in my estimation. One is that parents are not always as understanding as they might be and would laugh. And the other that the youngsters are shy of confiding what might appear to be foolish little matters to a visible confidante, while the author of a column seems unreal—far off, a benign being who will understand and spare one's blushes. And then it is easier to write one's confidence than speak it.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 14 years old and a daily reader of your column. I notice many of your advice seekers, in writing to you, state that they have parents, mothers in particular. Now, my dear Mrs. Lee, why can't the boys and girls show enough respect and appreciation of their parents by confessing their doubts with them? Isn't that really what mothers are for? I am sure if they did, both parties would become more close and learn to love each other with all their hearts. I only wish God had blessed me by putting me in a position to do this, but I have no father, and the Great White Way has robbed me of the one I should love to call mother. I've no one to comfort me. I am left to envy my friends' valuable gifts to a mother, father and home. How you will print this in your column as a hint to those who are so much luckier and richer than the richest parentless person.

"A DESERTED ORPHAN."
If you have been reading the column, as you say, you know that some of these young people write to complain of these same families. They are misunderstood at home, they feel, and must confide in an outsider. Your dream parents are all they should be — understanding and loving. You will have to remember, dear, that you might have had parents who were neither.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

OFF TO SEEK THEIR FORTUNE

"By and by the neighbors complained. And at last Father hid his mind to stand it no longer. He called the four brothers before him. Said he:

"The time has come, my sons, when you must leave the old home and go somewhere where you will be. You are all old enough to start homes of your own. I was no older than you when I married your mother. So farewell, my sons. Good luck go with you."

"The four sons knew that their father was right, and so off they flew to seek their fortunes.

"Goodby, boys!" cried the sisters. "Fortune guide your wings!" called the neighbors, and only their mother wept to see them go.

"The four brothers started off together, and deep down in his heart, although he would not have said so for the world, each brother wished that he had not been so cross to the other three.

At last they came to a place where two roads crossed. In which direction should they fly? A great tree grew by the crossroads, and upon this they alighted to discuss the matter.

"For my part, I can't see the sense in changing our course," declared the brother with the snow white coat. "We are making good time as it is flying with the wind, why should we turn aside so early?"

"That sounds exactly like you, brother," snarled the fellow in purple and green. "Always choosing the easiest way! I prefer to try my strength and go a way that looks the most interesting. I shall follow the path that leads to the right."

"I agree with you in what you have said about White Coat," remarked the brother with the golden collar, "but I don't understand why you should wish to fly to the right. That direction does not appeal to me at all. I am going to follow the path to the left. See how bright and blue is the sky over that way. You had better change your mind. Purple and Green and come with me."

"Indeed I'll do nothing of the sort," cried the brother so addressed. "I have a mind of my own as well as you have and I intend to use it. Fly in whatever way you please, for all of me. You need not think just because you own that collar of straws that you can lead me about by the tail. How about you, little brother with the red feathers, are you coming with me or will you fly with Golden-Collar?"

Next — "Quarrel at the Cross Road."

PUNTS AND PASSES

During a meeting held in Columbus, O., last September 19 and 20 for the study of football rules, L. S. McPhail, prominent member of the Ohio Association of Football Officials, presented his suggestions for acquainting the spectators with the nature of fouls called by football officials. It was agreed to give the plan a trial this season. The plan follows:

1. Scouting: Touchdown—both hands above head.
Safety—one hand with two fingers extended above head.
Touchback—arms crossed above head.
Ball dead—one hand above head.
Off-side: One arm extended in direction of penalty.

3. Incomplete forward pass: Arms extended moving sideways.
4. Striking, kicking, tripping, clipping, piling up, roughing knicker: Shaking of fists.
5. Illegal in motion: Arms extended before body—hands alternating vertically.
6. Holding, obstructing of opponents by use of hands or arms (line play): Grasping of wrist.
7. Interference (on pass plays or open field play): Pushing with hands.
8. Foul by both teams: Finger tips touching above head—arms form a zero.

9. Declining penalty: A military salute.
These interpretations of the fouls were furnished by H. W. Emswiler, secretary, O. A. F. O.

CEDARVILLE-WILMINGTON CLASH FRIDAY

With the "Yellow-Jackets" conceding an outside chance for victory, the Cedarville College-Wilmington College football game, originally scheduled for Saturday on the Quaker gridiron, was moved up to Friday afternoon.

The Wilmington grid squad, with four regulars on the hospital list, faced the task this week of bolstering up the lineup for the Cedarville game.

In putting his proteges through light workouts this week, Coach "Shifty" Bolen has stressed the fact that Cedarville has not defeated Wilmington in any branch of athletics since 1918.

While Coach Marvin Borst's boys are impressed with the apparent strength of Wilmington, they have not been depressed this week in view of the crippled condition of the Clinton County team.

Neither football eleven has been going any too well this season, but Cedarville's feat in holding Rio Grande College to a slim 12 to 9 victory last Saturday has restored the morale of the team.

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form; cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PUNTS AND PASSES.

During a meeting held in Columbus, O., last September 10 and 11 for the study of football rules, L. S. McPhail, prominent member of the Ohio Association of Football Officials, presented his suggestions for acquainting the spectators with the nature of fouls called by football officials. It was agreed to give the plan a trial this season. The plan follows:

1. Scoring: Touchdown—both hands above head. Safety—one hand with two fingers extended above head. Touchback—arms crossed above head. Ball dead—one hand above head.
2. Off-side: One arm extended in direction of penalty.
3. Incomplete forward pass: Arms extended moving sideways.
4. Striking, kicking, tripping, clipping, piling up, roughing, fouling: Clapping hands.
5. Illegally in motion: Arms extended & fore body—hands alternating vertically.
6. Holding, obstruction of opponents by use of hands or arms (line play): Grasping of wrist.
7. Interference (on pass plays or open field play): Pushing with hands.
8. Foul by both teams: Finger tips touching above head—arms form a zero.
9. Declining penalty: A military salute.

These interpretations of the fouls were furnished by H. W. Emswiler, secretary, O. A. F. O.

ARRANGE PROGRAM FOR DEDICATION

A brief program which will feature the formal dedication of the state-owned fish hatchery north of Xenia on the Springfield Pike at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon was outlined by the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association at a meeting of sportsmen at the Court House Thursday night.

Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture, will deliver the dedication address, the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band will play and local people are also expected to give brief talks.

The public is urged to turn out for the formal opening exercises.

CEDARVILLE-WILMINGTON CLASH FRIDAY

With the "Yellow-Jackets" conceding an outside chance for victory, the Cedarville College-Wilmington College football game, originally scheduled for Saturday on the quaker gridiron, was moved up to Friday afternoon.

The Wilmington grid squad, with four regulars on the hospital list, faced the task this week of bolstering up the line-up for the Cedarville game.

In putting his proteges through light workouts this week, Coach "Snitz" Bolen has stressed the fact that Cedarville has not defeated Wilmington in any branch of athletics since 1918.

While Coach Marvin Borst's boys are impressed with the apparent strength of Wilmington, they have not been depressed this week in view of the crippled condition of the Clinton County team.

Neither football eleven has been going any too well this season, but Cedarville's feat in holding Rio Grande College to a slim 12 to 9 victory last Saturday has restored the morale of the team.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Paul was making his farewell tour among his churches and his address to the Ephesians, in which we see his very heart, is a sample of his parting words.

Vs. 17-21—"I shrink not from declaring unto you anything that was profitable." After a brief outline of his work and experience among the Ephesians, Paul announces whither he is going and the purpose that is driving him on. It matters not whether we are going and what awaits us, if we are moved by a clear sense of duty and are sure that the Lord is leading us on. Danger never changed Paul's duty. It cost Paul some things to be faithful in Ephesus, but the record of it was worth much to him now. If through all the years we shrink not from duty, our record will stand behind us as a source of strength and satisfaction forever.

V. 23—"Take heed unto yourselves and to all the flock....to feed the church which Christ purchased with his own blood." We are first to take heed unto ourselves for unless we look after ourselves first we cannot look after others—to feed others, not simply to be fed is our mission.

Vs. 29-30—"I know that after my departing grievous wolves shall enter." The church has enemies from without, false teachings, worldliness and sin that are ever creeping into it. Even more dangerous are the enemies arising within the church "speaking perverse things." One Achan within the camp defeated Israel. One troublemaker within the church is enough to distract and weaken.

V. 31—"Watch ye therefore." Against these enemies without and within, we are to watch. "Watch" is a frequent and solemn word in scripture and it is one of the vital duties of the Christian life.

Vs. 32-34—"Ye ought to help the weak." Paul closes his address on the subject of the care of the weak and needy. He had first done himself what he was urging them to do and was asking nothing for himself.

V. 35—"It is more blessed to give than to receive." This is one of the most splendid utterances that ever fell from the lips of Jesus and expresses the essence and root of the gospel.

Home Education LETTING CHARACTER AND WORK SPEAK

Clara Barton, a retired public school teacher, many years ago became confidential secretary in the office of the Commissioner of Patents. Great confusion existed in the office at that time because some clerks had betrayed the secrets of certain inventions.

Miss Barton was the first woman to be employed in a government department and while ably handling the critical situations that called for resourcefulness, she had to cope with the scarcely veiled enmity of her jealous fellow workers looking upon her with indignation because she was a woman employee.

Miss Barton graciously endured slander and disrespect, letting her character and the quality of her work speak for themselves. They spoke so eloquently that when, because of a change of administration, she had left the patent office, she was recalled to straighten out tangles. —D. Carl Yoder.

1. SUGGEST A PLAN OF PRACTICAL DEFINITE GOALS.

In the school the superintendent prepares for each department a statement setting forth the goal for the month together with suggestions for each Sunday that will help all to reach the goal. For instance—the goal was "To know personally every mother and father of every pupil." Suggestions as to what might be done each week followed. These suggestions were in general allowing every department to work out a program best suited to its own requirements.

A standard for Leadership Training was adopted in one school and with very good results. The standard contained three points (1) a training class to be conducted at specific times; (2) every officer and teacher including pastor and superintendent either to take at least one unit in the training class or to read a prescribed book; (3) each of the three adult classes to furnish six members who would read a book on teaching methods and agree to act as supply teachers with the objective of finally becoming regular teachers.

2. HOW PROCEED TO ANSWER THE QUESTION IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL? "WHERE DOES OUR MONEY GO?"

An educational program needs to be conducted giving facts as to the various benevolent and philanthropic causes of the church. This may be done by giving members of the school special topics on the work of the church, giving special direction that the presentation may be interesting and illuminating.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. What is the purpose of the church? What would your city be like if there were no church in it? What makes and keeps members loyal?

2. What makes a pastor a success?

3. Where shall we find the wisest counsels?

4. How should we part from friends when Providence separates us?

CLERICUS SAYS, "It is no figure of speech to say that Paul looms larger than any other Christian in these nineteen centuries. His imperial shadow has fallen wherever the name of Jesus has been preached."

LESSON PRAYER

Help us, dear Lord, to recognize Thee as our source of protection as did Paul. May the possession of Thy word be our assurance of access to thy protection. Only thus shall we acquire strength to withstand enemies from within and without. Paul tested it. He commended it. Thy promise is back of it, and Thy promise cannot fail.

The Better Way

EXAMINING OUR PREJUDICES

Dr. William H. Phelps, editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate says, "There are five bad prejudices that spring from proper human instincts, but instincts have soured and fermented in the soul. It might not be amiss to examine our prejudices, although as a rule, that is the last thing we are likely to do. The way most likely to 'spoil' and ill-smelling prejudices is one of the mysteries of the race."

"Take a look at five of the meanest of all our prejudices. The religious prejudice came from a real loyalty to the church, but turned sour from fatal germs injected in it."

"The family prejudices were born out of loyalty to the family, but evil germs got in and offset that loyalty."

"The prejudice of race and color started with a normal love of one's kin, but the bacteria of hatred turned it sour."

"National prejudice started with a fine loyalty to country but germs of suspicion easily changed it into a coarse and unlovely nationalism."

"Our personal prejudices, often born of our own egotism and judgment are as often real handicaps to us, although we are generally very proud of them. Pride and prejudice are linked by more than alliteration."

PICKAWAY COUNTIAN MADE COUNTY AGENT TO SUCCEED KIMBER

J. F. Drake, Pickaway County, was elected county extension agent to succeed J. R. Kimber, resigned, by the executive committee of the Greene County Farm Bureau Thursday night.

Mr. Drake will assume his duties here November 1. Mr. Kimber's resignation took effect October 1, and since that time, Farm Bureau officials have been considering a number of applicants for the place. Mr. Kimber resigned to take over the management of the J. D. Steele farms here.

The new county agent is a graduate of Ohio State University. His home is in Morgan County, O., and he was in county agent work in West Virginia for three years. Recently he has been associated with County Agent Stanley Lewis, in Pickaway County.

Mr. Drake is married and has one son, seven years old. He is thirty-five years old.

WATERWORKS BONDS TAKEN BY BROKERS

Municipal waterworks extension bonds aggregating $2,000 were sold to a Cincinnati firm, which submitted the only bid received by City Commission at a special meeting Friday noon. The bid included a premium of $13.80.

The Cincinnati company accepted the bond issue at 5 1/2 per cent annual interest, payable semi-annually from September 1, 1930 to September 1, 1933, inclusive. The bonds are of $500 denomination each.

The bonds were issued by commission to pay for the extension of the waterworks plant north of Old Town, which will include construction of aerators and extension of the building and other incidental construction work necessary to meet requirements of the State Board of Health.

GOODYEAR OFFICIAL AUTO CRASH VICTIM

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 19.—Joseph Goudreau, 55, of St. Hyacinth, Quebec, superintendent of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's cotton mill there, was in the City Hospital today with a fractured skull received in an auto accident at West Richfield.

E. H. Roken, general superintendent of the Goodyear plant at Toronto was with him but escaped injury. H. L. Starr, 40, of Akron, driver of the auto, was cut and bruised.

The two officials attended a conference at the Akron offices and were on their way to Cleveland, when, at West Richfield, their auto was hit and upset by another car coming out of a side road.

HARRIS APPOINTED TIGERS' MANAGER

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 19.—Stanley "Bucky" Harris was appointed manager of the Detroit Tigers for the season of 1929, President Frank Navin of the Detroit Baseball Club announced today.

Harris succeeds George Moriarty who resigned this week after trying for two years to place the Tigers at the top of the American League.

GAS CAUSES FIRE

A leak in an underground gas line resulted in a fire at the rear of the home of Max Dooley, 533 W. Main St., which was extinguished by firemen at 8:45 p. m. Thursday. The blaze for a time threatened a nearby outbuilding. The fire was No. 109 so far this year.

MOVE TO LIQUIDATE WAR DEBTS TAKEN

PARIS, Oct. 19.—A surprise move to revise and liquidate the whole problem of war debts and reparations was made today. Premier Raymond Poincare held a long conference at the French minister of finance with S. Parker Gilbert, of the United States, agent general of reparations payments, and Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer.

The Little Yellow House

By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. ©1928

READ THIS FIRST:

Emmy Milburn, at seventeen, wanted to lift herself from the ordinariness of the little street she lived in, to the heights where she felt she properly belonged. After a party given by her rich cousin, Marianna, she resolved to better herself some day. Meantime she took a business course, paid for by her Grandmother Pentland, and snubbed, as well as she could, Robb Hollis, the boy down the street, who worked in a mill, and who represented the life she determined never to let herself sink into.

Marianna tells Emmy she is going to marry Jim Baldwin next day, and to keep it secret. Emmy succeeds in getting a stenographic job—her first position—and is immensely pleased that she will receive twenty-two dollars a week. She figures it will only be a little time before she can get an apartment of her own and leave Flower Street forever.

Since Uncle Bill Parks died Mrs. Milburn has been stopping in to see Grandmother Pentland while each evening. Emmy tells her mother "You should worry about her—she has plenty of money."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

Emmy shrugged her shoulders under her pink flannel gown. "She can hire some more servants, just the way Harbison Brothers hired me," she said. "She has plenty of money. You should worry about her!"

Mrs. Milburn came and stood beside her. "Emmy! I don't like to hear you talk like this. You seem to have a hard streak in you lately."

"She picked up the little jar of cold cream with its gold-paper label. 'And I don't like to see you spoiling your nice skin with this stuff. You don't need it, at your age, any more than a cat needs two tails.'"

Emmy lathered on some more of the cream. "Miss Ingham and all the girls at Harbison's use it," said she. "It's so dirty down town and there's nothing but liquid soap in the girls' dressing room. It just ruins your skin, they say."

The next morning, which happened to be Saturday, when Emmy put her hand in her pocket she found another package there—a cake of white Castile soap wrapped in a clean washcloth.

"I ran down to the drug store last night and bought it," Mrs. Milburn told her. "I don't want you to start putting things on your face. I don't want you to get that sticky look so many girls have nowa-days."

That day at noon Emmy was given her first salary envelope. Her eyes deepened and glowing she tore open the flap and looked at the twenty-two dollars in crisp new bills. Her own money!

On her way down to the dressing room on the floor below, she began to dispose of it mentally.

Twelve dollars to be set aside for a new coat. Five to go to her mother for board. Five for herself.

Miss Ingham was her wash-room drawing a pair of eyebrows with a brown pencil over the place where her own had been plucked.

"Well, I think I'll run up the street to have my hair trimmed and my nails done," she said, glancing at Emmy in the mirror that ran along the wall above the wash bowls. "Why don't you go with me? Honestly, you'd look a lot more kippy with your hair shingled. Your hat would fit better, too."

Emmy looked at the waves of burned-gold hair that showed under the brim of her gray felt hat. Yes, it would have more style if it were pulled down over her eyes the way Miss Ingham wore hers. Besides, why not try anything once? Short hair probably would give her the air of dash she thought she needed.

She went with Miss Ingham to the beauty shop.

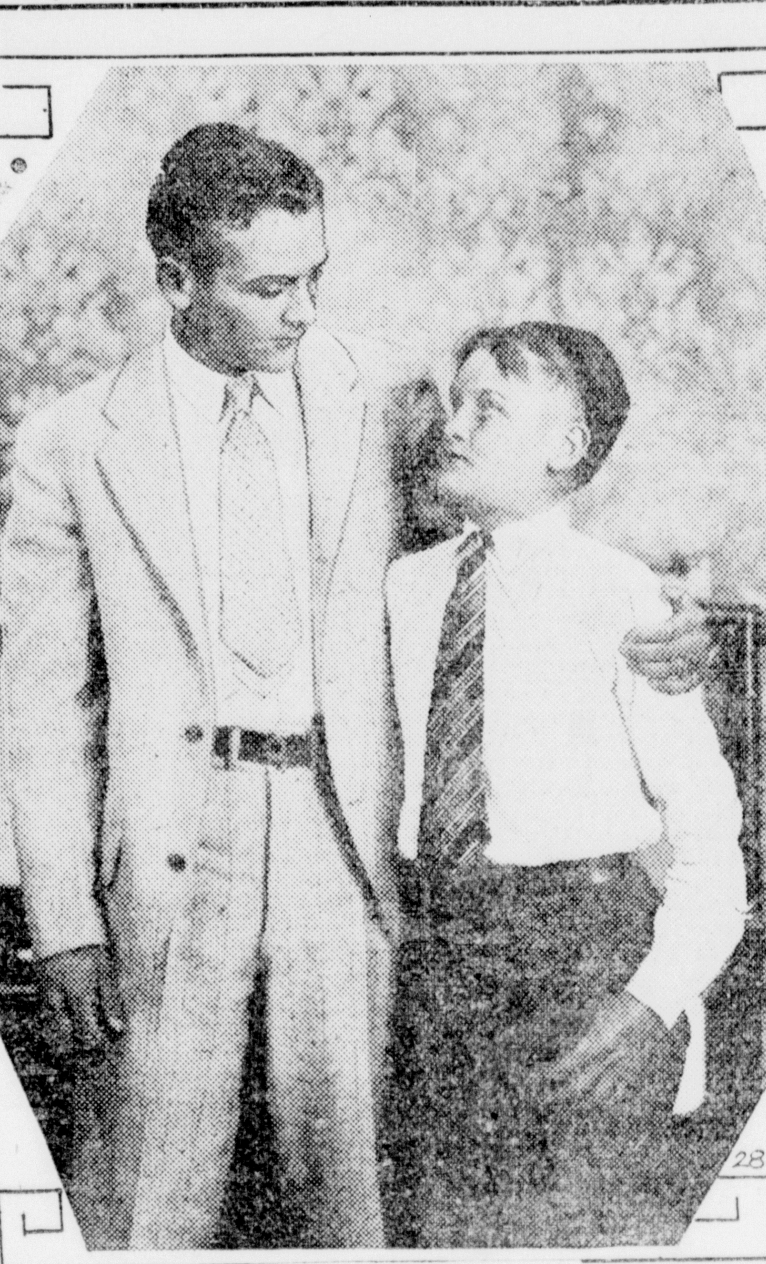

It gave her an odd, half-finished feeling to see her shining hair lying on the white shelf and to run her hand over the clipped nape of her neck.

"I don't know whether I like it or not," she said doubtfully.

"It's very snappy," Miss Ingham told her, running her shoe-button over the short head. "You looked as old-fashioned as Queen Mary's hat before, if you ask me."

She glanced down at her wrist watch. "Don't you want to drive down to Richfield with me and my boy friend?" she asked generously.

"There's a place to dance and have dinner down there, and it's a lot of fun. We always go somewhere like that every Saturday. It's Field Day for us!"

"Come on, kid, I want to talk to you."

Emmy thanked her and said she had to go home.

On her way out of the shop she stopped and bought a lipstick. She would just try it on her mouth to see how it looked.

It looked very well, she thought, sitting in the corner of the Cedar Avenue street car, with her feet propped against the stove.

Robb opened the door of the little yellow house for her. He had been reading by the fire.

"You mother and Dan have gone down town to meet your father," he said. "Dan's going to buy a new suit. What have you done to yourself, Emmy?"

His eyes went from her painted mouth to her shingled hair as she took off her hat and smiled up at him. He shook his head.

"I don't like you this way—I hardly know you," he said slowly. "You're different." He seemed to sense some change in her that was deeper than just the change in her looks.

"I am. I am different," Emmy answered. "I'm going to use lipstick and cut my hair and do anything else that I want to do from now on. You may as well know it. I'm tired of being dowdy and old-fashioned, just as I'm tired of this house and this street, and it won't be many more pay days before I'm out of it. So you won't be annoyed much longer by my looks, Mr. Hollis!"

She swept past him and up the stairs.

At the landing she turned and looked back at him. He was still standing where she had left him, and he had raised his head to watch her go.

"I've seen this coming for almost a year, Emmy," his grave voice came to her. "It'll kill your mother if you leave her."

"Oh, don't you ever think it?" Emmy scoffed at the idea. "If a little thing like my going away could kill my mother, she'd been dead years ago. Just think that she's lived through it. Think how she works in this place, carrying ashes and coal and dishes full of bath water up and down stairs, year in and year out, doing her own washings, never having a bit of help. And honestly, she seems to enjoy it. She thrives on it."

"She won't thrive on your going away," said Robb in his quiet, stubborn way. "I'll kill her."

He hit his forehead as he often did when he was thinking hard. "You know, Emmy, your mother always has made me think of the hardy chrysanthemums she raised out in the backyard," he said in his clumsy sensible way; "they keep on blooming—and then the frost comes and they're gone like that!"

Emmy went on up the stairs to her room. Her heart contracted with pain and fear for her mother. Then, all at once, she became angry at the thought of what Robb had said to her.

"He has no business talking to me like that!" she thought. "He's just trying to frighten me so I won't leave. He's trying to keep me here for himself!"

At five o'clock Mrs. Milburn and Dan came home.

"We missed your father. We were a little late," she explained. "And he likes to wait, you know."

Dan made a most impolite sound in his throat.

"We were five minutes late! It was just five minutes after two when we got to the Public Square, and he was to meet us at two," he said, scowling. "What's the use of trying to whitewash him, Mother? He stood us up and you know it. He never was near the Public Square."

He turned to Emmy, a look of fury and disappointment on his square, freckled face. "I wanted to go down to that place on St. Clair Street where he plays cards," he said tragically. "but she wouldn't let me do it! I knew he'd be there, doggone it all. And here I am, supposed to take a girl to the high school dance tonight!"

Emmy looked at him, a look of pity and sympathy. "Don't worry about it," she said. "I'll go with you. I'll be there, doggone it all. And here I am, supposed to take a girl to the high school dance tonight!"

Emmy thought of the twenty-dollar bill upstairs in the bottom of her purse. She thought of the east she needed, and of the hope of her own that she wanted with such a passion of wanting.

And while she was making up her mind to give Dan the money, Robb settled the question.

"Come on, kid," he said, laying his big arm across Dan's shabby shoulders. "We'll go for a gallop on the struggle-buggy. I want to talk to you, anyway."

An hour afterward he dropped Dan at the door of the house and went on up the street in his loose-jointed little car.

Dan was wearing a new suit of gray tweed, and the old one was rolled up under his arm.

"Robb let me take twenty-five snappers to buy for this," said his mother and Emmy. "I, says I ought to buy my own suits with the money I make delivering stuff for the drug store. And he made me promise to keep away from the Humidor until I've paid him back his twenty-five."

"The Humidor?" asked Mrs. Milburn. The Humidor was a cigar store two blocks away on Cedar Avenue. "Well, you do smoke too much, Dan. You promised me you'd stop smoking until you finished high school—and you aren't stopping it."

But that was not what Robb had meant. The Humidor was the haunt of a bookmaker, and Mr. Milburn and Dan went there very often to "play the ponies." And Robb knew it.

Think how she works in this place, carrying ashes and coal and dishes full of bath water up and down stairs, year in and year out, doing her own washings, never having a bit of help. And honestly, she seems to enjoy it. She thrives on it."

"She won't thrive on your going away," said Robb in his quiet, stubborn way. "It'll kill her." He knitted his forehead as he often did when he was thinking hard. "You know, Emmy, your mother always has made me think of the hardy chrysanthemums she raised out in the backyard," he said in his clumsy sensible way. "They keep on blooming—and then the frost comes and they're gone like that."

Emmy went on up the stairs to her room. Her heart contracted with pain and fear for her mother. Then, all at once, she became angry at the thought of what Robb had said to her. "He has no business talking to me like that!" she thought. "He's just trying to frighten me so I won't leave. He's trying to keep me here for himself!"

At five o'clock Mrs. Milburn and Dan came home. "We missed your father. We were a little late," she explained. "And he likes to wait, you know." Dan made a most impolite sound in his throat. "We were five minutes late! It was just five minutes after two when we got to the Public Square, and he was to meet us at two," he said, scowling. "What's the use of trying to whitewash him, Mother? He stood us up and you know it. He never was near the Public Square."

He turned to Emmy, a look of fury and disappointment on his square, freckled face. "I wanted to go down to that place on St. Clair Street where he plays cards," he said tragically. "but she couldn't let me do it! I know he'd be there, because I all. And here I am, supposed to take a girl to the high school dance tonight!"

Emmy thought of the twenty-dollar bill upstairs in the bottom of her purse. She thought of the coat she needed, and of the house of her own that she wanted with such a passion of wanting. And while she was making up her mind to give Dan the money, Robb settled the question. "Come on, kid," he said, laying his big arm across Dan's shabby shoulder. "We'll go for a gallop in the struggle-buggy. I want to talk to you, anyway." An hour afterward he dropped Dan at the door of the house and went on up the street in his lone, jointed little car. Dan was wearing a new suit of gray tweed, and the old one was rolled up under his arm. Robb let me take twenty-five snappers to pay for this," he told his mother and Emmy. "I ought to buy my own suits with the money I make delivering stuff for the drug store. And he made me promise to keep away from the Humidor until I've paid him back his twenty-five."

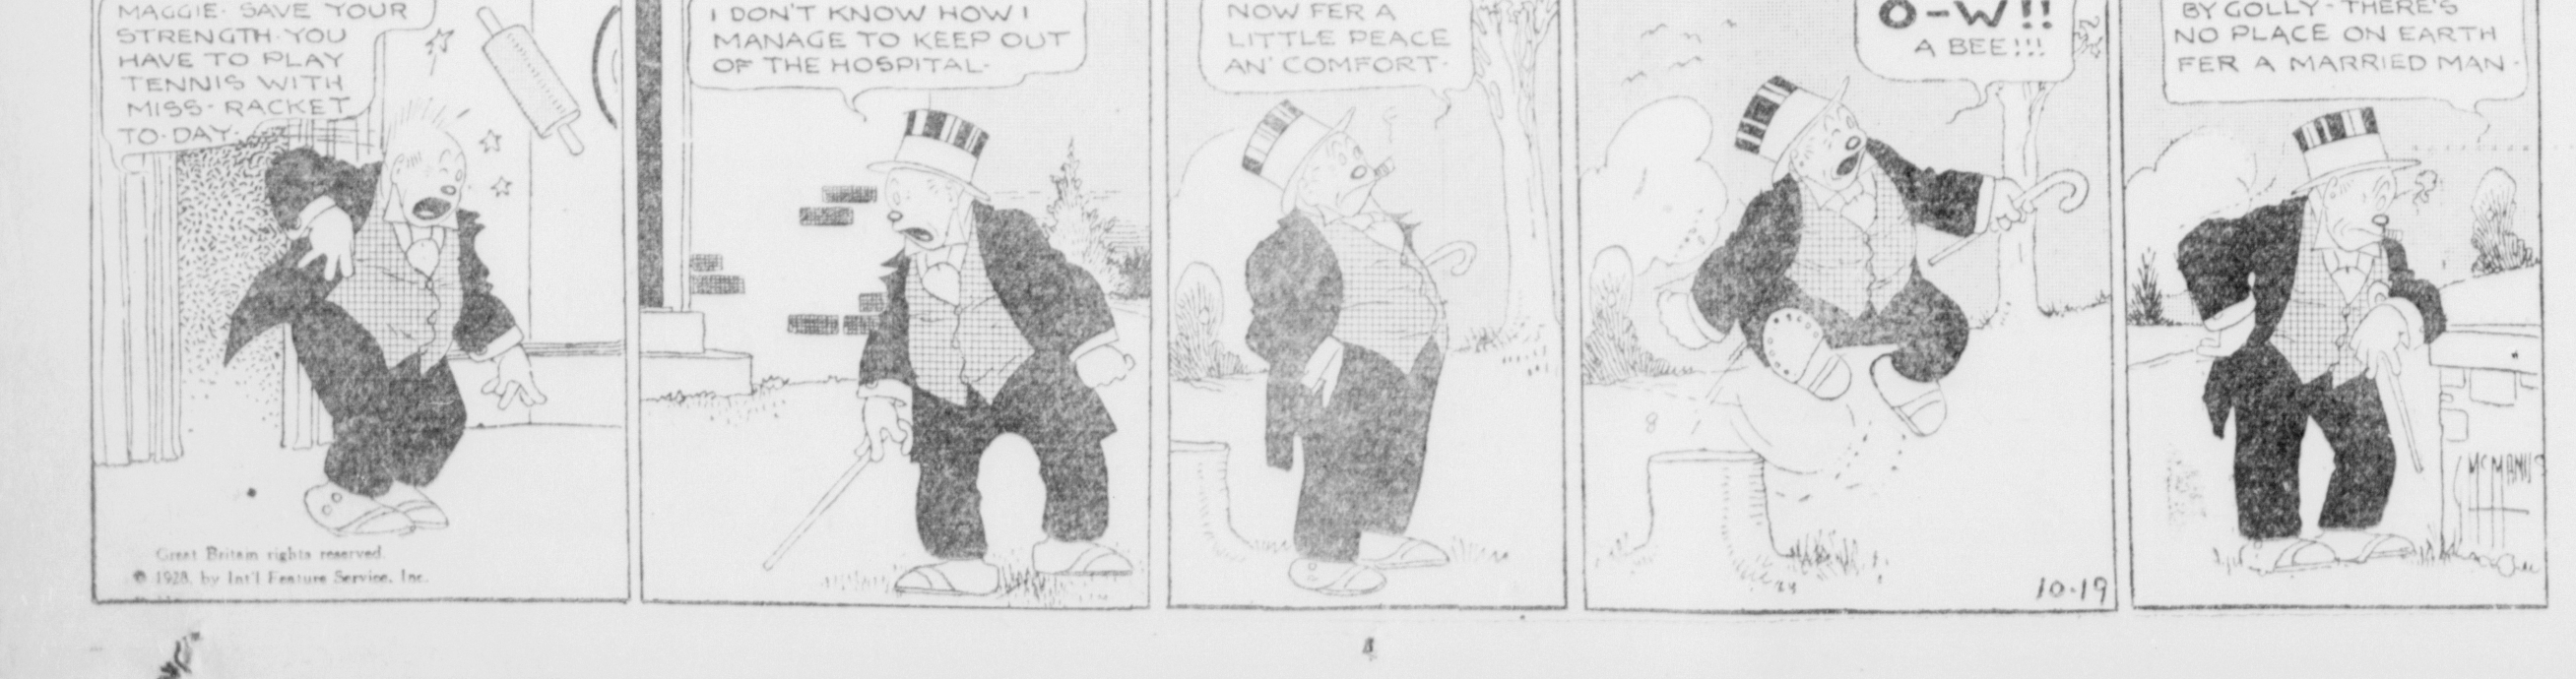

"The Humidor?" asked Mrs. Milburn. The Humidor was a cigar store two blocks away on Cedar Avenue. "Well, you do smoke too much, Dan. You promised me you'd stop smoking until you finished high school—and you aren't stopping it." But that was not what Robb had meant. The Humidor was the haunt of a bookmaker, and Mr. Milburn and Dan went there very often to "play the ponies." And Robb knew it. (TO BE CONTINUED)

The Theater

"Michael Strogoff" has come to the screen at last. This masterpiece of the most imaginative writer of the nineteenth century, Jules Verne, who gave the world "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," "Rouletta," "The World in Eighty Days," "The Blockade Runners," "The Mysterious Island," "The Green Ray" and others well known to lovers of fast adventure tales, seemed destined to be filmed from the days of the first motion pictures, but the difficulties of production always loomed menacingly.

It took the courage of the Societe des Cineromans, the famous French company, which also produced "Les Miserables," to meet all obstacles and surmount them.

"Michael Strogoff" is a gripping story of a Russian officer's mission

Since Doug Fairbanks, Jr., became engaged to Joan Crawford he looks like a million dollars. Jean made him cut down on cigarettes. Instead of "ating" two packs a day Doug smokes ten and likes it.

He works out in the Hollywood Athletic club gym two hours daily. He doesn't go skylarking to parties when he's emoting in a picture. Doug, Sr., is quite pleased with his son's engagement. But the youngsters won't get married for some time to come. Doug, Jr., intends to have a pump bankroll when this happens, and he's working hard and saving ditto.

through Siberia at the time when the country was infested with hostile Tartars. It was a tremendous undertaking to film the story. Eight months were consumed in making the picture, which comes to the Orpheum Theater Sunday, October 28, and the director and his company journey from Paris to L'Avia, a former province of Russia, to film the exteriors. There they were given every assistance of the L'Avian government.

REV. QUARTELL HAS FIRST BIBLE STUDY THURSDAY EVENING

"The Revelation," was the subject of a Bible study conducted by Rev. Peter Quartell of Dayton in the First Reformed Church Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Berean Bible Class.

After a chicken noodle supper served by women of the church about 100 people gathered in the church auditorium for the Bible study.

The Rev. Mr. Quartell conducts the City Gospel Mission in Dayton and has been teaching an interdenominational class in the mission each Friday for sixteen years. He is a regular, ordained minister in the Baptist Church.

He said, "The great outstanding character of the Book is Jesus Christ, our Prophet, Priest and King who loved us, and washed us from our sins in His own blood."

"The writer of Revelation is the apostle John who has been banished to the Isle of Patmos by the Roman governor. Here he is given this vision of Jesus Christ and a prophecy of things to come in the last days of this age."

"The three major divisions of the book are mentioned in verse 19 of the first chapter. The things which 'thou hast seen' refer to the Patmos vision in Chapter 1; 'the things which are' refer to things then existing in the churches in Chapter 2 and 3; 'the things which shall be hereafter,' means the time after the church is taken out of the world and mentioned in Chapters 4 to 22."

The second part of the book, Chapters 2 and 3 will be taken up next Thursday at 6:30 p. m. Supper will be served again by the women at 5:30 and all who are interested in a study of the Bible are urged to attend this fellowship.

LABOR:

Hoover Is the Best Friend Labor Ever Had

Hoover never had a strike. For years he was in charge of fast mining operations involving thousands of men. He never forgot the human element. His first consideration was to provide for the men adequate wages, decent living conditions, sanitary habitations. Before Hoover ever wielded the powers of an executive, he had earned his living as a farm boy, as office boy and as miner. He pounded a drill, shoveled ore, and pushed a handcar for eight hours a day or night. Hoover knows the hardships of labor, and the far greater hardships of unemployment.

It was at Hoover's suggestion that the President in 1921 appointed a conference of labor leaders, economists, and business men to attack the problem of unemployment. When the conference began, there were millions of idle men. In three months industry was picking up and men were finding employment. Hoover understands the laboring man's problems from the inside.
